Principles of Medical Ethics

The International Code of Medical Ethics states that “A Physician shall act only in the patient's interest while providing Medical Care” with Dedication, Competency, Compassion, respect for Human Rights, Confidentiality, Constant updating, Emergency Medicare, enhancement of the Community Health etc.

The principles of Codes of Ethics are

- Being faithful and loyal to the patients.
- Applying moral standards in Medicare.
- Promoting highest Ethical standards in the Profession.
- Dignifying the Profession.
- Being fair to fellow Professionals, patients and public.
- Improving the Quality of life of the patients& public
- Honesty in advertising

Every Medical Practitioner should ask oneself several times while taking history, investigating, treating and billing whether we are adhering to “Medical Ethics” which alone can justify the aim of God who made us a Doctor.
